King Philip Regional School

Twenty-five years ago, the first students marched forth into King Philip High School, to be followed by thousands of others all in search of the same thing-one of the best educations to be offered in this state.

About five years before the start of the construction of K.P.R.H.S., committees were set forth to find out what was needed in the three towns in terms of curriculum. As a result, when the evaluations were completed, programs of study compiled, and the building erected, one of the most modern high school structures and curriculums in this part of the country was to be opened to the students of Plainville, Wrentham, and Norfolk.

Because of the size of the towns, none could offer wide curriculums or a good vocational program. Norfolk had to send its students to Walpole on a tuition paid, year-to-year basis. This was not a good solution, because Walpole had barely enough room for its own students and Norfolk didn't have a real voice in policy making.

When the original school structure was being planned, it was decided that there could be three schools, one in each town. As a result, there is land across from the Jackson School in Plainville that was held for another school.

When the school was first planned, it was estimated that it would cost about $1,800,000 to complete the structure. It finally cost approximately $2,900,000, almost 4 million with the landscaping and the equipment necessary to conduct classes.

Thanks to nine men from the three towns, we have our school today. Their plan was to give the students the best education possible, so that the students would be more prepared for higher education in some of the better schools in the country.

These men were Roger Woodwin, Arthur Bond, and Hugh Marshall of Wrentham; Edward Hemmingsen, LeRoy Wilson and Clarence Skinner of Plainville; and Alvin Freeman, John Ravinski, and Seth Armand from Norfolk. These men formed the original school and building committees. They can be credited with staying up until three and four o'clock in the morning during the month before the school was opened, doing strictly volunteer work in addition to their own regular jobs.

They can also be credited with choosing the school name. King Philip was the chief of the Wampanoag Indians, who are said to have lived in this area, possibly on the shores of Lake Pearl. When King Philip became the chief of his tribe, he began preparations for a war against another tribe. Englishmen who had settled in this area were suspicious of King Philip and his warriors, though, and one day they found one of their spies dead. The blame was put on three of King Philip's warriors, which infuriated the chief and his tribe. So they retaliated in what became known as King Philip's War. The eventual outcome of this war was in favor of the Englishmen, leaving the warriors to flee to Canada and the Englishmen to settle on the tribe's soil. Three hundred years later, nine men from Plainville, Wrentham, and Norfolk named the new school for King Philip.

The new high school was ready for occupancy in October of 1957, and by March of 1958 the full program was underway.

In 1967, the King Philip Junior High School was completed for seventh and eighth graders. Before then, the seventh and eighth graders were housed in the high school, but with increasing enrollment, there wasn't enough room for all six of the grades.

By 1975, there was an addition to the school which gave us a vocational section twice the size of the original one, a newer and larger gymnasium, and a new media center.

Through the years, the vocational school has grown to greater and greater sizes. When the school was opened there were only six shop classes, home economics, carpentry, machine shop, metalworking, woodworking, and mechanical drawing. In 1981, there were fifteen vocational programs. These programs were courses such as distributive education for students interested in business management and merchandising and related fields, a health course for students health and medically related fields, office occupations, sheet metal, automotive, electrical, and machine shops, plumbing, technical drawing, drafting, child care, carpentry, culinary arts, home economics, and small engines.

Since 1959, the carpentry shops have built one house per year for people living in the three towns, and every shop does its specialty to complete the house. In 1979, a health course was added to the vocational curriculum to prepare students who are interested in a medical or related field. For many years there has been a future nurses club and a medically related careers club, but there was never anything that could prepare students as this program does.

In 1957, Warren Pressley was chosen to be the first King Philip High School principal. He left his post after seven years. Charles Manos was then appointed to the principalship, leaving after five years. R.J. O'Donnell came but left after a year to become the Assistant Director of Evaluation for the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. E. Switzer became principal in 1972 and held that position for two years. When the school opened in September of 1974, Walter White, Assistant Principal, took the position of Acting Principal. Clyde LaVine was then given the position and held it for the next three years. Donald Murphy then served as principal for three years before leaving to become a school principal in Cairo, Egypt. William Costa, who has served as the superintendent for ten years, will now serve as SuperintendentPrincipal.

Year by year, the school has grown not just larger, but richer, and more able to fulfill the goals of the original building committee. It has enabled all who have passed through the halls of King Philip the chance to reach their own goals and to be successful in whatever they strive to attain.

Four teachers from the original 1957 staff still teach at King Philip Regional School today.

To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield was the motto of the first graduating class of King Philip. They were honored with a new and modern curriculum, and a chance to leave their mark on King Philip in a speical way.

A student planning group was assigned to some of the details in the completion of the school. They chose the school colors, green, white, and gold. They chose the warrior as the school mascot, and assigned Melvin Chevers to draw up the school symbol. Thus, we have our school emblem, the Indian drawing on top of an arrowhead, which has been placed on our yearbooks and school rings, and has become part of tradition at King Philip for the past twenty-five years.

The class of 1958 held the first "slob day" on the day after the school was dedicated. No one believed that the class could produce a yearbook, because of the time factor involved, but they did it, and gave it a name that also became part of King Philip tradition, the Chieftain. Co-edited by Betsy Bigelow and Maureen Paksarian, it was dedicated to the parents of the students.

David Binney, a graduate of King Philip, was appointed to the Military Academy at Westpoint. He was appointed in 1959 by Senator John F. Kennedy, one of the last men to be appointed before Kennedy became President.

The King Philip Drama Club was established, directed by Mr. Patrick O'Hara. No productions were performed that first year, but dozens of plays and musicals have been staged since then.

In the first year, the school opened so late that the football team did not have a chance to play but that did not dim the spirit of the students.

The field hockey team played one game against Walpole and tied, one to one. The basketball team, complete with cheerleaders, traveled around the area playing neighboring teams and finished with a 7-10 record. The team's high scorer was Charles Daniels, who scored 191 points. Girls' basketball had an undefeated season its first year and Judy Dumont was the teams high scorer. The hockey team started its first season at King Philip with a 4-5 record.

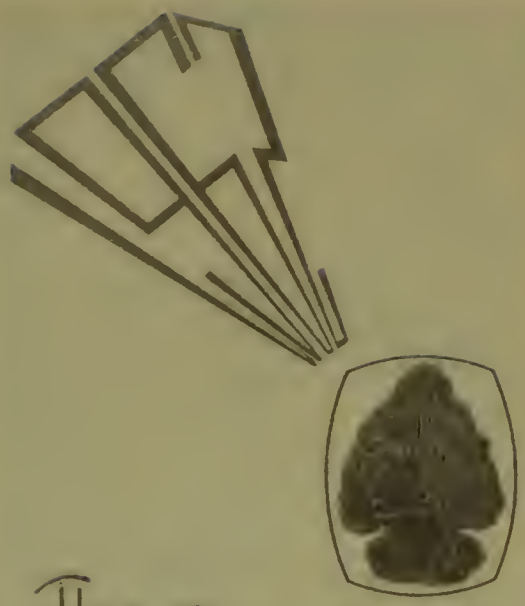
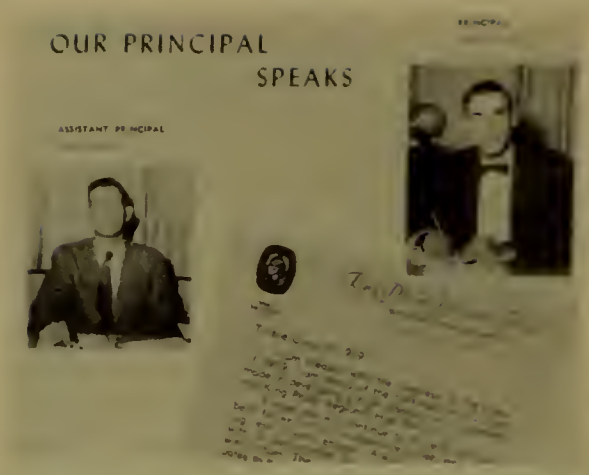
As the school year ended, the class will, gifts and senior superlatives were chosen. Charles Weeber and Betty Lukow were chosen as "most likely to succeed," Bill Lowe and Jean O'Dea were chosen as "playboy-pinup girl," Rollie Ferland and Gail Mather as "class flirts" and Paul Schwalbe and Janet Hall as "most popular." The first King Philip year ended with the first commencement exercises. Patricia Cunningham, the first graduate was given her diploma by Mr. Edward Hemmingsen of the school committee, who also awarded his daughter, Nancy, with her diploma. Under the leadership of Paul Schwalbe, the senior class president, the class of 1958, although a small one, left their indelible mark on King Philip, which will linger for as long as the school stands.

In 1959, the school continued to grow with the addition of more teachers and programs. John Robbins started a Driver's Education class and the football team played its first season. New clubs came into existence that second year, and the music department expanded with a stage band, marching band, and chorus.





Some activities included the Cinderella Ball, sock hops, and pep rallies. The school newspaper, Smoke Signals, went into publication with five issues printed.

1960 saw new and bigger feats performed. The first student exchanges were held. The band exchanged with another band in Maine. Each band gave a concert at the other school. Also, thirty juniors and seniors, chosen for their academic ability and personality, exchanged with thirty students from the Manta County High School at Bradenton, Florida.

1960 also saw the beginning of girls softball. The softball team had a successful season of one game in which they defeated Canton.

The Presidential elections of 1960 generated enough interest at King Philip that a "mock election" was held. John F. Kennedy was found to be the students' choice for President.

In 1960, the students formed WKPH, a club which delivered the morning and afternoon school announcements and a half hour broadcast weekly on WARA in Attleboro.

In 1961, new clubs were added, and programs by and for the students welfare progressed.

Another student exchange sent thirty King Philip students to Kenosha, Wisconsin. Also, the band played an exchange concert, this time in Deep River, Connecticut.

The drama club began performances with such plays as "Mr. Co-ed," "The Willow Pattern," "John Doe," and "The Clod."

A foreign language club was formed and 150 students joined its ranks. Also, accelerated programs in math were offered.

The Helen Keller Chapter of the National Honor Society was formed. The chapter admitted freshmen and sophomores who showed academic excellence and participation in school and outside activities.

The best bargain in town was the Chieftain

yearbook, just four dollars for a year's worth of memories.

Again in 1962, the school held an exchange with Lakewood, Colorado. The exchange of thirty students was headed by Alice Church and Michael Cosentino.

The band improved; they received and "A" rating at a music festival and participated in two more exchanges.

The drama club produced two more plays, this time doing "The Man Who Came to Dinner" and "The Night is my Enemy."

1963 brought forth the first students to complete six years at King Philip. The senior class produced the play "The Roaring Twenties."

Also in 1963, the local newspapers told the story of eight senior boys, discovered drinking on a field trip to New York City. The school principal, Warren Pressley, suspended the boys for one week. The superintendent of schools, Dr. John McDonnell then suspended the students indedinitely.

King Philip scholar Mark Cowell skipped his senior year of high school to attend Northeastern University to study journalism. He returned to King Philip in May to receive his high school diploma with his class.

There was a dental hygiene clinic and every student who participated received toothbrushes and toothpaste for his entire family.

1963 was also the year that President Kennedy was felled by as assassin's bullets in Dallas, Texas. Matthew Sekula, a student at King Philip, traveled to Washington, D.C. where he saw the late President's funeral cortege pass from the Capitol building to Saint Matthew's Cathedral. He then attended the burial services at the Arlington National Cemetery.

The King Philip class of 1964 planted a Japanese cherry tree that still stands in the north corner of the courtyard.

A school principal from India, Mrs. Leelabai Bhagwhat came to Wrentham to speak with King Philip students. She was a leading educator in Bombay. She was given a recording that was made by the King Philip Band.

The band also sponsored a community concert given by the Brookline Symphony Orchestra. It was held in the King Philip High Auditorium.

In 1965, gymnast Brenda Blazic of King Philip became the state champion in the uneven parallel bars competition.

When King Philip High was being planned, it was built to accomodate for twelve thousand students. In September of 1964, the total enrollment in the six grades was 1375.

Starting in 1965 and ending in the early 1970's, there was a rash of bomb scares. The first of many came in December '65 when an anonymous caller said that the school would be blown to bits. Soon there were so many alarms that school had to be made up during vacations and weekends. One year school was made up in an extra period every day for twenty-eight days. Once, there was a bomb scare called during a basketball game against Foxboro, and the game had to be transferred to the Foxboro High School gym. Another time a scheduled school dance had to be cancelled. In 1965, graduation was held despite a phone call that said that the school would be demolished during the commencement.

Also in 1965, there was a health program, including physicals, eye and ear examinations, speech therapy, dentistry; diptheria, tetanus, and tuberculosis tests; conferences with parents, students, and teachers, and home visitations when necessary.

A German-Russian club was formed in 1966 enabling students who were serious about their chosen second language to learn the culture of that country and practice the language.

Also in 1966, a policy stated that pregnant girls were not expected to remain in school. After the pregnancy, the girl would be allowed to return to classes, but unwed mothers and the proven fathers would be barred from extracurricular activities. Handling of such cases would be left to the principal and superintendent.

Donna Marconi and Leah MacDonnell were chosen by the superintendent to represent King Philip at a seminar for students active in student affairs. The keynote speaker was Senator Edward Kennedy, who spoke on the issue of Vietnam.

Gymnast Kathy Packard placed first in the state balance beam competition.

In 1967, a school store was opened, offering school supplies, bookcovers, pennants, and jackets. The store was open before and after school and was run by the student council members.

The senior class produced the plays "Madwomen of Chaillot" and "Ring Around the Moon."

On December 12, 1966 a matchmaking dance was held. A computer was utilized to match everyone with their ideal "mate." One boy was "ideally matched" with fifteen different girls.

The King Philip basketball team played at Boston Garden aginst Oliver Ames. Traveling with the team were the cheerleaders, the pep squad, the spectators. The team played as a preliminary to the Boston Celtics' game.

Nine King Philip students traveled to Cannes, Frances to intensively study the French language, with their teacher, Mrs. Mildred Wallace. Jere Sievert and Donald Porter were the first King Philip students to become National Merit Scholarship finalists. Also that year, five students from King Philip received the National Merit Letter of Commendation.

Francis Salemme, a King Philip graduate, was awarded with top Yale commendation, an appointment to the Yale House of Scholars for 1966-1967. Robert Croswell of King Philip scored an 800 on his level two Math Achievement Exam, put out by the College Board Service.

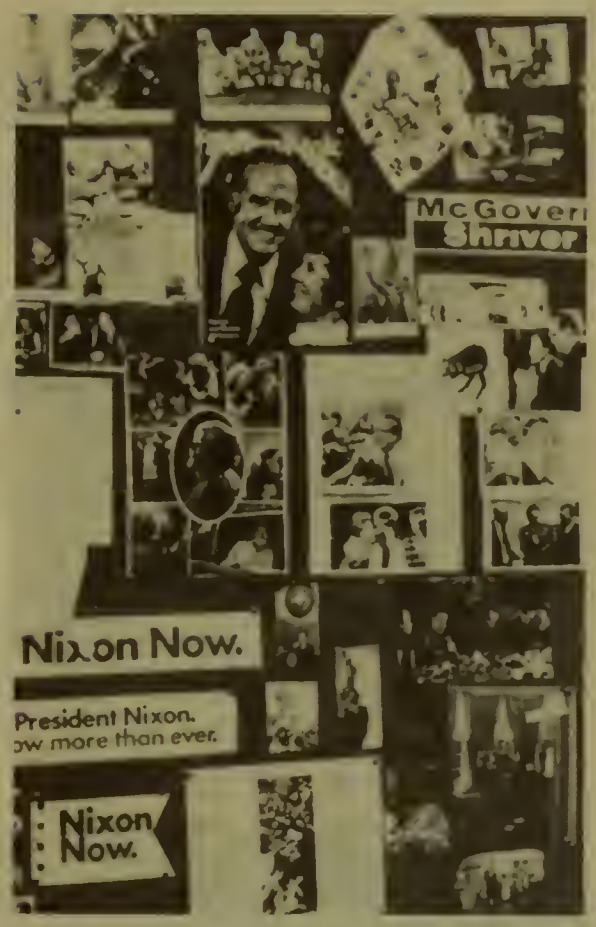
The social event of the 1968 school year was the Christmas Party put on by the Spanish, German, Russian, and Latin clubs, which provided students with the opportunity for members to compare our Christmas customs with those of foreigners. The Spanish club donated a pinata to the festivities.

The drama club produced two Broadway musicals, "My Fair Lady" and "The Sound of Music," with experienced actors, colorful costumes, and decorative scenery.

The Warriors' football team defeated Franklin for the first time in six years. Also that year, the girls' softball team were the league champions.

Academically, King Philip also thrived. A creative writing class was incorporated under the direction of Mrs. Eleanor Reed Alter. Also, Joseph Cormier, a King Philip science teacher, received his masters degree in combined sciences from the University of Mississippi.

The 1968 Chieftain won a first place award from the Scholastic Press Association. Mrs.



Alice Church was the advisor.

In 1969, the junior honor society along with the Future Teacher's Association helped to finance a CARE sponsored school in Latin America.

WKPH expanded, and along with the morning and afternoon announcements and the half hour broadcast on WARA, they did play by play coverage of all home games at King Philip.

The King Philip Band shed their old uniforms for new ones, which were to be used until 1981.

For the first time in the history of the school, the student council president and vice-president were elected directly by the student body.

The French club held a French dinner in 1969. They also held Christmas and cheese-tasting parties which were successful.

Because of injury, the Warriors' football team were limited to only three wins. Despite this record, four King Philip Warriors made all-league. The football team beat Foxboro High for the first time in Warrior history.

In 1970, the Warriors' football team had its best season ever with a record of 7-2. Three students on the basketball team made all-league.

A student-faculty social was held which was a success, bringing in many members of the student body and faculty.

Homecoming was a success, with the freshman class winning the float competition. The freshman class went on to win the float competition for the following three years-the only class ever to with all four of their floats.

1971 was also the mid-point of the Vietnam war. In the 1971 yearbook there was a poem written by a King Philip student:

Seems like only yesterday,
doesn't it?
When there wasn't an endless war.
When a lot of kids were young.
And Alive.
When a 13-year-old boy's chances of dying in Vietnam were remote.
Think about it.
We've been getting out of
Vietnam for years now.
Isn't it about time we got out?
Let's not sacrifice another American life for a war we've already abandoned.
Let's not put off until tomorrow
what's costing lives today.

Also in 1971, there was a proposal for a sex education class. The opposition to such a class was so strong that an appeal was made to nullify such a proposal.

The class of 1971 graduated in an outdoor ceremony despite heavy rain showers.

1972 was a good year for athletics. First of all, the football team defeated Franklin in the annual Turkey Day classic. The track team was the league champion. The hockey team placed first in the Southeastern league. The faculty held a basketball game to raise money for the scholarship fund.

The King Philip Drama Club produced another Broadway musical on the stage of King Philip, this time presenting "The King and I."

In 1973 the Warriors' football team had an excellent record of 7-2. They were defeated only by North Attleboro and Sharon. The girls' track team had a record of five wins and one loss, losing to Canton.

The drama club again produced two Broadway musicals. The first play that was presented was "The Music Man," starring Richard Shepardson as Professor Harold Hill. They then produced "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" starring Steve Foley as Charlie Brown and Richard Shepardson as Snoopy.

A sign hung on the walls of King Philip shortly before the break of the Watergate scandal: "President Nixon, Now, more than ever."

In 1974, the cross country team placed third in both the league and in the South Shore track meets.

A swimming program was added to the King Philip list of special programs for students. Also there was a ski club, and mountain climbing for those who preferred to struggle up the mountains instead of gliding down them.

Homecoming was a big day for King Philip, and although the Warriors lost to rival Sharon, the day was a show of enormous spirit, led by Queen Robin Devine.

The drama club presented "Fiddler on the Roof" and "Godspell."

In 1975, an International Fair was held at the school. A National Merit Club was present along with the Future Teacher's Association, Volunteer Service club, an art workshop, a choir, a radio club, the office education association, the majorettes, and a ski club.

Also this year a freshman football team, freshman basketball, and freshman baseball were added to the vast sports roster. In 1976, a freshman dance was held for the newest underclassmen. Added to the long list of extracurricular activities was a Student Action for Education Association. Boy's freshman basketball was dropped from the sports roster. In 1976, in celebration of America's Bicentennial, the play "1776" was performed.

1977 was a year for school spirit. The week of homecoming brought students to school in their oldest clothes during slob day; and a hat day was held, with prizes for the best hats going to Skip Workman and Laura Hanlon. To top off the week, the homecoming queen, Andrea Colletto was chosen. It was a rare year, with the football team winning both the homecoming game and the Turkey Day Classic.

In 1978 there was a chess club and a coin club. The blizzard of '78 kept the students out of school for a week, with Wrentham

Art students were appointed to paint murals on the walls of King Philip which were started in the fall of 1978.

In 1979, there was an International Fair held at the school, with foreign foods prepared by students of the French, Spanish, and German students, along with chariot rides given by the toga-draped Latin Club.

The football team played Foxboro under the lights in a spectacular at Schaefer Stadium. The Warriors defeated Foxboro by a score of 7-0, scored on a fabulous kickoff return by John Lewicki. The girl's cross country team finished their season second in the Hockomock League. The girls' tennis team was the league champion. The girls' soccer team began on a junior varsity level. It was expanded to a varsity level the next year.

Student of King Philip held a demonstration against the possiblity of war in Iran after fifty-two Americans were taken hostage in the embassy.

In 1980, all freshman organized sports were cut. As of 1982, students will have to pay a fee to join organized sports.

At the end of the 1980 school year Mr. Raymond Hill, the Band director for twenty-three years took an early retirement. He was replaced by Mr. Steve Elman, and in the first year under his direction, the band entered in three competitions, placing third, fourth out of five, and fifth out of six. A jazz ensemble was also formed.

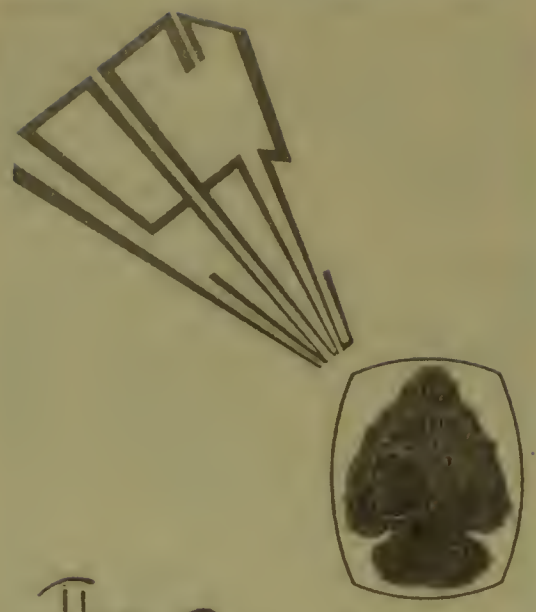
record. The team's high scorer was Charles Daniels, who scored 191 points. Girls' basketball had an undefeated season its first year and Judy Dumont was the teams high scorer. The hockey team started its first season at King Philip with a 4-5 record.

As the school year ended, the class will, gifts and senior superlatives were chosen. Charles Weeber and Betty Lukow were chosen as "most likely to succeed," Bill Lowe and Jean O'Dea were chosen as "playboy-pinup girl," Rollie Ferland and Gail Mather as "class flirts" and Paul Schwalbe and Janet Hall as "most popular." The first King Philip year ended with the first commencement exercises. Patricia Cunningham, the first graduate was given her diploma by Mr. Edward Hemmingsen of the school committee, who also awarded his daughter, Nancy, with her diploma. Under the leadership of Paul Schwalbe, the senior class president, the class of 1958, although a small one, left their indelible mark on King Philip, which will linger for as long as the school stands.

In 1959, the school continued to grow with the addition of more teachers and programs. John Robbins started a Driver's Education class and the football team played its first season. New clubs came into existence that second year, and the music department expanded with a stage band, marching band, and chorus.



Some activities included the Cinderella Ball, sock hops, and pep rallies. The school newspaper, Smoke Signals, went into publication with five issues printed.

1960 saw new and bigger feats performed. The first student exchanges were held. The band exchanged with another band in Maine. Each band gave a concert at the other school. Also, thirty juniors and seniors, chosen for their academic ability and personality, exchanged with thirty students from the Manta County High School at Bradenton, Florida.

1960 also saw the beginning of girls softball. The softball team had a successful season of one game in which they defeated Canton.

The Presidential elections of 1960 generated enough interest at King Philip that a "mock election" was held. John F. Kennedy was found to be the students' choice for President.

In 1960, the students formed WKPH, a club which delivered the morning and afternoon school announcements and a half hour broadcast weekly on WARA in Attleboro.

In 1961, new clubs were added, and programs by and for the students welfare progressed.

Another student exchange sent thirty King Philip students to Kenosha, Wisconsin. Also, the band played an exchange concert, this time in Deep River, Connecticut.

The drama club began performances with such plays as "Mr. Co-ed," "The Willow Pattern," "John Doe," and "The Clod."

A foreign language club was formed and 150 students joined its ranks. Also, accelerated programs in math were offered.

The Helen Keller Chapter of the National Honor Society was formed. The chapter admitted freshmen and sophomores who showed academic excellence and participation in school and outside activities.

The best bargain in town was the Chieftain

yearbook, just four dollars for a year's worth of memories.

Again in 1962, the school held an exchange with Lakewood, Colorado. The exchange of thirty students was headed by Alice Church and Michael Cosentino.

The band improved; they received and "A" rating at a music festival and participated in two more exchanges.

The drama club produced two more plays, this time doing "The Man Who Came to Dinner" and "The Night is my Enemy."

1963 brought forth the first students to complete six years at King Philip. The senior class produced the play "The Roaring Twenties."

Also in 1963, the local newspapers told the story of eight senior boys, discovered drinking on a field trip to New York City. The school principal, Warren Pressley, suspended the boys for one week. The superintendent of schools, Dr. John McDonnell then suspended the students indedinitely.

King Philip scholar Mark Cowell skipped his senior year of high school to attend Northeastern University to study journalism. He returned to King Philip in May to receive his high school diploma with his class.

There was a dental hygiene clinic and every student who participated received toothbrushes and toothpaste for his entire family.

1963 was also the year that President Kennedy was felled by as assassin's bullets in Dallas, Texas. Matthew Sekula, a student at King Philip, traveled to Washington, D.C. where he saw the late President's funeral cortege pass from the Capitol building to Saint Matthew's Cathedral. He then attended the burial services at the Arlington National Cemetery.

The King Philip class of 1964 planted a Japanese cherry tree that still stands in the north corner of the courtyard.

A school principal from India, Mrs. Leelabai Bhagwhat came to Wrentham to speak with King Philip students. She was a leading educator in Bombay. She was given a recording that was made by the King Philip Band.

The band also sponsored a community concert given by the Brookline Symphony Orchestra. It was held in the King Philip High Auditorium.

In 1965, gymnast Brenda Blazic of King Philip became the state champion in the uneven parallel bars competition.

When King Philip High was being planned, it was built to accomodate for twelve thousand students. In September of 1964, the total enrollment in the six grades was 1375.

Starting in 1965 and ending in the early 1970's, there was a rash of bomb scares. The first of many came in December '65 when an anonymous caller said that the school would be blown to bits. Soon there were so many alarms that school had to be made up during vacations and weekends. One year school was made up in an extra period every day for twenty-eight days. Once, there was a bomb scare called during a basketball game against Foxboro, and the game had to be transferred to the Foxboro High School gym. Another time a scheduled school dance had to be cancelled. In 1965, graduation was held despite a phone call that said that the school would be demolished during the commencement.

Also in 1965, there was a health program, including physicals, eye and ear examinations, speech therapy, dentistry; diptheria, tetanus, and tuberculosis tests; conferences with parents, students, and teachers, and home visitations when necessary.

A German-Russian club was formed in 1966 enabling students who were serious about their chosen second language to learn the culture of that country and practice the language.

Also in 1966, a policy stated that pregnant girls were not expected to remain in school. After the pregnancy, the girl would be allowed to return to classes, but unwed mothers and the proven fathers would be barred from extracurricular activities. Handling of such cases would be left to the principal and superintendent.

Donna Marconi and Leah MacDonnell were chosen by the superintendent to represent King Philip at a seminar for students active in student affairs. The keynote speaker was Senator Edward Kennedy, who spoke on the issue of Vietnam.

Gymnast Kathy Packard placed first in the state balance beam competition.

In 1967, a school store was opened, offering school supplies, bookcovers, pennants, and jackets. The store was open before and after school and was run by the student council members.

The senior class produced the plays "Madwomen of Chaillot" and "Ring Around the Moon."

On December 12, 1966 a matchmaking dance was held. A computer was utilized to match everyone with their ideal "mate." One boy was "ideally matched" with fifteen different girls.

The King Philip basketball team played at Boston Garden aginst Oliver Ames. Traveling with the team were the cheerleaders, the pep squad, the spectators. The team played as a preliminary to the Boston Celtics' game.

Nine King Philip students traveled to Cannes, Frances to intensively study the French language, with their teacher, Mrs. Mildred Wallace. Jere Sievert and Donald Porter were the first King Philip students to become National Merit Scholarship finalists. Also that year, five students from King Philip received the National Merit Letter of Commendation.

Francis Salemme, a King Philip graduate, was awarded with top Yale commendation, an appointment to the Yale House of Scholars for 1966-1967. Robert Croswell of King Philip scored an 800 on his level two Math Achievement Exam, put out by the College Board Service.

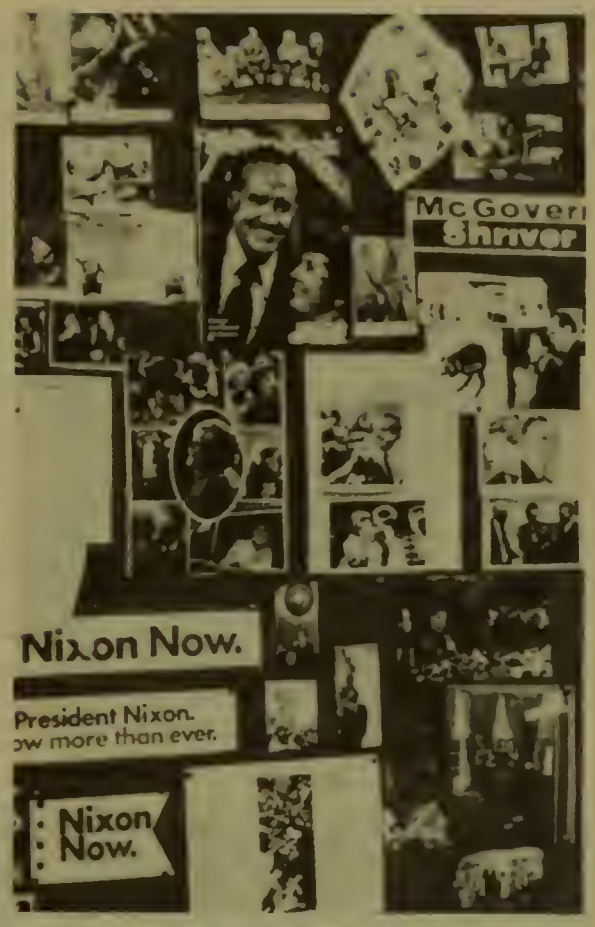
The social event of the 1968 school year was the Christmas Party put on by the Spanish, German, Russian, and Latin clubs, which provided students with the opportunity for members to compare our Christmas customs with those of foreigners. The Spanish club donated a pinata to the festivities.

The drama club produced two Broadway musicals, "My Fair Lady" and "The Sound of Music," with experienced actors, colorful costumes, and decorative scenery.

The Warriors' football team defeated Franklin for the first time in six years. Also that year, the girls' softball team were the league champions.

Academically, King Philip also thrived. A creative writing class was incorporated under the direction of Mrs. Eleanor Reed Alter. Also, Joseph Cormier, a King Philip science teacher, received his masters degree in combined sciences from the University of Mississippi.

The 1968 Chieftain won a first place award from the Scholastic Press Association. Mrs.



Alice Church was the advisor.

In 1969, the junior honor society along with the Future Teacher's Association helped to finance a CARE sponsored school in Latin America.

WKPH expanded, and along with the morning and afternoon announcements and the half hour broadcast on WARA, they did play by play coverage of all home games at King Philip.

The King Philip Band shed their old uniforms for new ones, which were to be used until 1981.

For the first time in the history of the school, the student council president and vice-president were elected directly by the student body.

The French club held a French dinner in 1969. They also held Christmas and cheese-tasting parties which were successful.

Because of injury, the Warriors' football team were limited to only three wins. Despite this record, four King Philip Warriors made all-league. The football team beat Foxboro High for the first time in Warrior history.

In 1970, the Warriors' football team had its best season ever with a record of 7-2. Three students on the basketball team made all-league.

A student-faculty social was held which was a success, bringing in many members of the student body and faculty.

Homecoming was a success, with the freshman class winning the float competition. The freshman class went on to win the float competition for the following three years-the only class ever to with all four of their floats.

1971 was also the mid-point of the Vietnam war. In the 1971 yearbook there was a poem written by a King Philip student:

Seems like only yesterday,
doesn't it?
When there wasn't an endless war.
When a lot of kids were young.
And Alive.
When a 13-year-old boy's chances of dying in Vietnam were remote.
Think about it.
We've been getting out of
Vietnam for years now.
Isn't it about time we got out?
Let's not sacrifice another American life for a war we've already abandoned.
Let's not put off until tomorrow
what's costing lives today.

Also in 1971, there was a proposal for a sex education class. The opposition to such a class was so strong that an appeal was made to nullify such a proposal.

The class of 1971 graduated in an outdoor ceremony despite heavy rain showers.

1972 was a good year for athletics. First of all, the football team defeated Franklin in the annual Turkey Day classic. The track team was the league champion. The hockey team placed first in the Southeastern league. The faculty held a basketball game to raise money for the scholarship fund.

The King Philip Drama Club produced another Broadway musical on the stage of King Philip, this time presenting "The King and I."

In 1973 the Warriors' football team had an excellent record of 7-2. They were defeated only by North Attleboro and Sharon. The girls' track team had a record of five wins and one loss, losing to Canton.

The drama club again produced two Broadway musicals. The first play that was presented was "The Music Man," starring Richard Shepardson as Professor Harold Hill. They then produced "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" starring Steve Foley as Charlie Brown and Richard Shepardson as Snoopy.

A sign hung on the walls of King Philip shortly before the break of the Watergate scandal: "President Nixon, Now, more than ever."

In 1974, the cross country team placed third in both the league and in the South Shore track meets.

A swimming program was added to the King Philip list of special programs for students. Also there was a ski club, and mountain climbing for those who preferred to struggle up the mountains instead of gliding down them.

Homecoming was a big day for King Philip, and although the Warriors lost to rival Sharon, the day was a show of enormous spirit, led by Queen Robin Devine.

The drama club presented "Fiddler on the Roof" and "Godspell."

In 1975, an International Fair was held at the school. A National Merit Club was present along with the Future Teacher's Association, Volunteer Service club, an art workshop, a choir, a radio club, the office education association, the majorettes, and a ski club.

Also this year a freshman football team, freshman basketball, and freshman baseball were added to the vast sports roster. In 1976, a freshman dance was held for the newest underclassmen. Added to the long list of extracurricular activities was a Student Action for Education Association. Boy's freshman basketball was dropped from the sports roster. In 1976, in celebration of America's Bicentennial, the play "1776" was performed.

1977 was a year for school spirit. The week of homecoming brought students to school in their oldest clothes during slob day; and a hat day was held, with prizes for the best hats going to Skip Workman and Laura Hanlon. To top off the week, the homecoming queen, Andrea Colletto was chosen. It was a rare year, with the football team winning both the homecoming game and the Turkey Day Classic.

In 1978 there was a chess club and a coin club. The blizzard of '78 kept the students out of school for a week, with Wrentham

Art students were appointed to paint murals on the walls of King Philip which were started in the fall of 1978.

In 1979, there was an International Fair held at the school, with foreign foods prepared by students of the French, Spanish, and German students, along with chariot rides given by the toga-draped Latin Club.

The football team played Foxboro under the lights in a spectacular at Schaefer Stadium. The Warriors defeated Foxboro by a score of 7-0, scored on a fabulous kickoff return by John Lewicki. The girl's cross country team finished their season second in the Hockomock League. The girls' tennis team was the league champion. The girls' soccer team began on a junior varsity level. It was expanded to a varsity level the next year.

Student of King Philip held a demonstration against the possiblity of war in Iran after fifty-two Americans were taken hostage in the embassy.

In 1980, all freshman organized sports were cut. As of 1982, students will have to pay a fee to join organized sports.

At the end of the 1980 school year Mr. Raymond Hill, the Band director for twenty-three years took an early retirement. He was replaced by Mr. Steve Elman, and in the first year under his direction, the band entered in three competitions, placing third, fourth out of five, and fifth out of six. A jazz ensemble was also formed.

In reflection, the rapid growth of King Philip can be accredited to both the faculty and students, for without their long hours and dedication, the goals of the original building committee would never have been achieved.

Dedication

We, the staff of the 1982 Chieftain, would like to dedicate this twenty-fifth anniversary edition yearbook to four very special teachers who have taught at King Philip since it opened its doors in 1957. Mr. Edward Morgan, Miss Clara Manteca, Mr. John Dwyer, and Mr. Michael Consentino have devoted twenty-five years of their lives inspiring classes of King Philip students. It is because of their devotion to the youth of Plainville, Wrentham, and Norfolk that we dedicate this edition of the Chieftain to them.

We asked each of them what their most meaningful King Philip experience has been.

"I have never regretted my tenure at King Philip - receiving personal satisfaction in that I have in some way been able to help mold the minds and academic attitudes of so many young people. The students and faculty have been respectful and appreciative of what I have tried to project in the classroom in addition to academic achievement - to train them to listen and to think logically."

Mr. Morgan

"The most meaningful experience for me at King Philip has been to see the accomplishments and development of my students."

Miss Manteca

"The realization that I am now teaching the sons and daughters of students that I had in class many years ago has been rewarding and has given me a chance to see the many changes that have taken place with the 'new generation'.

"I have enjoyed the lasting friendships and associations with such fine people like Edward Morgan, Frank Gallipeau, Clara Manteca, Mike Cosentino and Walter White and many others while at K.P. I will never forget my experiences with them.

"I also feel that in my many years of coaching here at K.P. I have been very fortunate to have young men that were a pleasure to teach and work with-I have kept in touch with so many of them."

Mr. Dwyer

"The past 25 years has been a conglomerate of meaningful experiences. It has tempered my values and has been a rewarding time of life for me."

Mr. Cosentino

By bus, car, foot, or bike we arrive at school to start each day. For four long years, we travel to and from KP, never knowing what surprises and disasters the day will yield. We should preserve our memories, because that's all we'll have left someday.

America's newest obsession is Rubik's Cube. It has driven people all across the nation into a state of incredible frustration. Once it has been scrambled, it's almost impossible to rearrange it into the proper order. In fact, it has been calculated that there are virtually millions of combinations for the 2 1/8" high cube with its 54 colored squares.

Of course, those with little patience can cheat. It is possible to lever off a corner block and thus take apart the cube. But then remains the problem of putting it back together. Some people have even removed the little stickers and stuck them back on in the proper order.

The Cube comes in several different sizes - from necklaces to keychains to the full-sized original. Some consider it an obnoxious brain teaser, and throw it out immediately, and others stick with it and solve it again and again. The world record, set in England as a boy not yet in his teens, in less than 30 seconds.

"Good morning KP", that familiar phrase of WKPH, wakes us up and informs us of the upcoming events. While in homeroom, we can relax, drowse, talk about yesterday's events, or do that last minute studying.

Fashion is swinging preppie. From Izods and pennyloafers to oxfords and crewneck sweaters, people are changing their style and are dressing the way New England Ivy Leaguers have dressed since the 1940's.

Chinos and alligator shirts are classic of the way Yale, Harvard, and Princeton students look, though they little realized that their style of clothing would one day become a state of mind to some people.

The preppie explosion has spread from affluent Eastern prep schools all the way across the country, and alligators can be found everywhere from the beaches of California to the halls of King Philip High School - Wrentham, Ma.

The pressures and pleasures that each day brings are experienced by all who strive to reach their goal in life.

All through history, feathers have been a basic part of fashion. Feathers have been made into cloaks, war bonnets, and boas. For the past few decades, they have only adorned the rims of hats, but they are returning to the limelight in psychedelic colors.

Now they are worn in the hair and can be found in bright, though artificial, colors such as yellow, purple, green and blue. Also, they can be seen attached to earrings, belts and pins.

From first period blahs to seventh period anxieties, the typical KP day sometimes takes on extraordinary qualities. For example, smoke break and senior study offer opportunities to relax and converse.

On the opposite end of the spectrum from the preppie look is the anti-prep look. A common sight is buttons with the slogan "save an alligator - shoot a preppie" or showing an alligator wearing a people shirt.

The most preppie influence is felt in the Northeast, and it is there that the anti-prep rebellion is based. A recent comic strip suggested that to rid the world of preppies, one need only spray for them as though they were flies.
The anti-prep idea is a natural, though amusing, outcome of the recent rage for non-comformity. Let us hope that no one takes it seriously.

Homecoming Queen, Stacey Begin, and her Court, Chris Johnston, Lorraine Lewis, and Liz Pomfret beautifully highlight the eventful day. The Warriors lost the game, but they put up a good struggle.

1982!

Calvin Klein, Gloria Vanderbilt, Sasson and Jordache. These are just some of the names that have recently emerged onto the fashion scene in a most humble way-on the seats of blue jeans.

But, of course, these are not just blue jeans. These are designer jeans; considered as far above the level of ordinary denims as Mercedes above Pintos. The fancier the stitching on the pockets, the more unusual the design, and the higher the price, the more people buy them.

They are selling like hotcakes and are quickly by-passing the more traditional names like Levi's or Lee's. It is a national phenomenon that has caused censoring of television commercials and outraged commentary in conservative circles.

But designer jeans are popular and they sell, and in this day and age, that's what counts.

Spirit Week was both competitive and enjoyable. Class spirit and unity were at a peak. The seniors finally won the Spirit Week Trophy and proudly displayed their winning float.

1982!

One fad that has hit virtually every K.P. student is the tee-shirt. Whether vocational or academic, freshmen or senior, girl or boy, not a day goes by when the halls are not full of them.

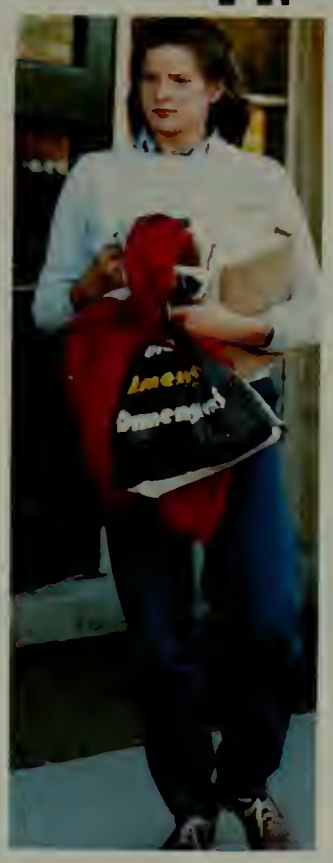
It really doesn't matter what kind you wear (as long as the administration doesn't object). There are red, blue, yellow, decorated or even plain white. Each class has their own shirt usually in school colors and the school store sells them. Even the Chieftain Yearbook sells them.

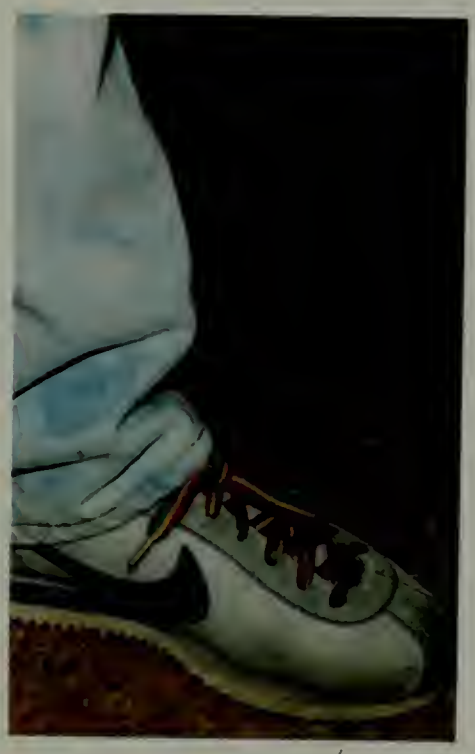
Concert tee-shirts seem to be the most popular, from all sorts of groups, like Journey, Yes, and the Stones. Another type is printed with logos and sayings. Tee-shirt stores have sprung up everywhere with mottos like "You say it, we print it"??.

So on those days when you can't decide what to wear, grab a tee-shirt and jeans and you'll be all set.

1982!

There's more to high school than classes; like clubs and student government; like dances, concerts, and soap operas; like Mac's and weekend parties: like sports; like making friends.





Shoelaces! No longer are they the bland white and brown of the past. Now people are wearing them in rainbow stripes and swirls or with figures on them.

Preppies wear alligators while the more daring wear red lips on their laces, and others may have unicorns, elephants or multi-colored hearts. The addition of blue, red or green figures to the dusty canvas sneaker or even a fancier shoe is one of the latest multi-high school crazes.

Life outside the classroom—the places where you live, work, and have good times. Academic, athletic, and social activities are in abundance at KP, and play an important role in students' lives.

Hair. Everyone has it, even babies and (most) old people. But it is most popular and most important for young people. Specifically, high school and college students. All sorts of different styles are worn, both long and short, curly and straight. Famous people have inspired such cuts as the Lady Di and the Dorothy Hamill. Some people like their hair frizzy, some like it feathered, and some like it pink or green. But whatever one wears, be it Afro or Mohawk, it will be in style.

The Freshman and Sophomore semiformal, "The Rose", was held on March 6, 1981 at the King Philip Ballroom in Wrentham. Debbie Finley was crowned Queen and in her court were Sophomore princesses, Sandy Allsworth and Denise Petrosian, and Freshman princesses, Kelly McKenna and Rita Preston.

Computers are becoming more and more commonplace in today's society. All sorts of new machines are coming on the market and being used for keeping files in business, balancing checkbooks, saving recipes in the home and even helping students to do their homework.

Computer games in arcades, like "Space Invaders", and games on disks for use with home computers, are very popular with the younger generation these days. Most of the initials of the record breakers on an "Asteroids," game are those of kids in their teens or younger. It has become a prized skill to be able to beat the computer.

On May 28, the Junior-Senior Prom "Memories" was held at the Sheraton Mansfield. Tammy Reed was chosen queen. In her court were Senior princesses Maureen Kirby and Susie Shurmur. Junior princesses were Leslie Vickory and Laura Littlefield.

Nike, Adidas, Etonic, New Balance. These are names seen on every street corner, in every hallway of every high school, and in every closet of every teenager across the country. They are literally underfoot. Or to be more precise, they are under-, on-, about-, and over-foot. These are the names of shoes worn for baseball and basketball, track and tennis. Many an athlete is willing to pay up to $50 for a shoe designed especially for their sport. Many people who are not even athletes wear these shoes, in every possible situation, from rowboating to running and shopping for clothes to going to the prom.

Turkey Day Game festivities began with a bonfire on Wednesday night. Our Warriors lost a hard fought game by a score of 21-14. K.P. members of the Queen's court were Julie Flannery and Jami Ransom. Jim Phelan, was named Most Valuable Player for King Philip.

Robert Redford, veteran actor of stage, screen and television with over a dozen films to his credit, has charmed audiences world wide and earned himself many honors and awards. He was proclaimed one of the top box office attractions of 1980 and also owns a star on the Hollywood "Walk of Fame". His many movies include "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid", "The Sting", (both of which co-starred his close friend Paul Newman), "The Way We Were", "The Electric Horseman", and his most recent film venture "Ordinary People". In this movie he tried his hand at directed and received the 1981 Academy Award for best director.

Junior-Senior Powder Puff team beat the Sophomore-Freshman team with the score of 21-6. Our sexy cheerleaders, Leif Arvidson, Dave Thompson, Glen Hall, Scott Latham, Ed Enos and John Barton were on hand to cheer the Junior-Senior team to victory.

Androids and blasters, spaceships and aliens: these, combined with dashing heroes and ominous villains, are aspects of the recent wave of science-fiction/fantasy films. The release of "Star Wars" in 1977 heralded this new escapism in movie- making.

Soon after "Star Wars" came "Close Encounters of the Third Kind", a film about the coming of extra-terrestrials to modern day earth. This, like "Star Wars", was a blockbuster, and it sealed the fortune of director Steven Spielberg. But not all science-fiction movies are popular or well-made. "The Black Hole", from Disney Studios, and "Star Trek: The Motion Picture" were neither critical nor box-office successes.

But despite the poor quality of some films and the poor reception of others, it is apparent that escapist movies are here to stay.

1982!

Super Senior Supper was held on December 2, 1981. Entertainment was provided by Scott LeFoll, who read the class prophesy, much to the delight and/or dismay of his classmates. The class motto contest winner was Kim Maxon. Highlight was the announcement of the Senior Superlatives of 1982.

Miss Piggy

Miss Piggy has become a sex symbol. Her swinish charm, which enchanted millions who saw her first movie with Kermit, "The Muppet Movie", was enforced by the 1981 release of "The Great Muppet Caper".

Her psuedo-French vocabulary and accent, coupled with her intriguing views on life, as expressed in Miss Piggy's Guide to Life, have made her the nation's darling. There was even a petition circulated to nominate the "actress" for an Academy Award.

Ironic, isn't it, that one of the most popular figures on the screen today is a mass of wires and material operated by a man named Oz?

The Honor Society Induction Banquet was held December 3rd 1981 in the High School cafeteria. All students in the Junior and Senior classes who have maintained a 3.3 grade average received a formal invitation into the National Honor Society. The K.P.T.P. catered the event and several speeches were given, including one by Scott Lefoll, the Honor Society President.

In 1922, George Herbert, Fifth Earl of Carnarvon, and Howard Carter, an American archaeologist, discovered the tomb of Tutankhamun and set into effect a chain of events that would climax fifty years later with a triumphant tour around America.

Thomas Hoving, head of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, arranged in 1977-78 for a tour of all the major museums in the nation, where hundreds of thousands flocked to see the more than 4,000 dazzling pieces of art that made up the exhibit. "King Tut", as the 3,000 year old mummy came to be known, was an instant hero. People wore Tut charms, bracelets, and necklaces. Steve Martin even wrote a song about him. The lyrics were odd, as most of Martin's material is:

King Tut
shoulda won a grammy buried in his jammies,
Funky Tut
He's an Egyptian!
He gave his life for tourism.

The Silver Anniversary of King Philip Regional Hihg School was celebrated with a dinner dance held at the King Philip Ballroom. Graduates from all twenty-five classes and their guests were invited to attend. Old yearbooks were displayed.

In Memoriam: Sharon Glynn

Yesterday wasn't too bad a day, the sun wasn't out and there was some haze.

And somewhere in this great land of ours, another life is taken within a few hours.

But this time it's not just some other guy but one of your own friends has suddenly died.

At first you laugh and you don't think it's true, but then your friends call, telling you that someone has taken the life of a close friend.

At sixteen, Sharon's life comes to an end.

That's too short of a life for anyone.
To me, her life had just begun.

And yet this world still goes on,
and even though Sharon's gone her memories will last our whole life, and I hope he is punished, the man with the knife.

CLASS PROPHECY

June 5, 2002 A.D.

Dear Mr. Keleher,
So much has happened in the past twenty years, I don't know where to start. We just had the class reunion, and it was a great success. Mrs. Fagan was there. We were all hoping they would let you out for one night. Well maybe at the forty year reunion they'll give you a pass.

Our class has done some unbelievable things. Some of us have flown to great heights; others were high enough before they ever left the school!

You remember Karen Carver? Just after you were committed, she became the first woman president of the U.S. Kathy Smith is her National Security Advisor, and the official White House Interior Decorator. Karen appointed Bill Doyle as head of the Space Program; Ed Duffy is the Chief Space Shot and Art Rounds is busy colonizing Neptune. Beverly Loew became the Ambassador to Tibet, where she met Hugh Maguire on a mountain trying to find himself.

Sue Kenney is the President's Advisor on unemployment. Tom Murray and Kurt Nevins are the officially unemployed.

Many of those in our class really know how to enjoy life. Here are a few examples: Peter Tsarides has been relaxing on the Cape for the past twenty years. Monty Alix lives in a New York Penthouse and drinks martinis. Jim Phelan is a successful professional golfer, and has a different color 'Vette for every day of the week. Michele Hanlon is living on the Australian Coast, surrounded by kangaroos, koalas, and blonde Austie lifeguards-a dream come true. Patrick Mayer became a co-owner of the Jack Daniel's Distillery. Alan Gelineau and Karen Schwalbe live on the Greek Islands. Brad Kundert is being paid $10,000 a year by the FDA to research the drug problem in California. Alan O'Dea finally got his Jaguar and paid cash for it. It bit him yesterday. Tony DiRe declared war on Russia, and then decided to become a farmer instead. Rob Palmer is a millionaire; Janice Robinson is sitting in his jacuzzi sipping champagne at this very moment.

Do you remember a girl named Jeanne Waters who joined the U.S. Navy? She is now Supreme Admiral of the Russian Fleet. She designed new pink lace uniforms for the entire Navy! Gary Power is a member of Pyromaniacs-Anonymous and owns the Nationwide Fire & Life Insurance Company.

There is a national club, known as the K.P. Couples Association. These are the class of '82 members who got married and/or raised a family. Mary McMorrow has six children and lives in L.A. Susan Andrews is also a doctor. Paula Walsh, whose kids all seem to have light blonde hair and blue eyes, is married. Stacey Cook lives in the South with her seven kids. She is also a hairdresser. Donna Zasadny is a nurse. Anne Evans is a rich farmer-nurse as well. Kristen Fox, whose husband is a Baptist Missionary in the jungles of Boston is married. Lisa McLeish and Rosezella Welch each have four children. Linda Pikarsky, who gained some weight, has ten children. Jodi Clark has four. Kellie Mikulis also has a dog, a cat and an engineering job. Donna Cote moonlights as a successful world traveler. Laura Littlefield is a hairdresser and happily married. Donna Manganiello is also with Ed Lanagan with his and hers dark blue Trans Ams. Thomas Cafferky still has long hair. Diedre LeMay is with Jeff, forever. Greg Cook raised a business and bought a family. Kevin Moore keeps his animals and his kids in cages out behind the woodpile. Jackie Nason and Connie Dion's new movie, "5-9", was an instant box-office success. Cheri Alix has had a record child per year since graduation. Suzanne Wilson's running experience came in handy while chasing her kids through the Washington Mountains. Janet Poirier and Kim Maxon also control Wall Street on the side. Dan Keenan and Alan Kannally are two executives who did it in style. Ann Derbyshire's a working mom.

Tom Ferrone broke into broadcasting first. Paul O'Gara uses computers to keep track of all his children. Jami Ransom is also a bank president. Lori Samuto and Laura Lindsay made sure "it" was legal first, and eventually became lawyers. Mary Demers has three children. Julie Flannery is in Arizona. Robin Lynch has only two children and a job.

Some of us just became wealthy, healthy and happy, such as Ellen Tumavicus Ken Dahlbeck and Eric Werning. Rich Gale became a nomadic gypsy, and Rob Picini is his man-servant. Tom Donnelly is flyin' in his limo. Brad Buck is playing for the Bruins. Janis Bibby is happy. Chris Johnston makes millions managing the Waldorf Astoria. Paul Pimental is wealthy and happy in Tennesee. Mark Cataldo, Peter Eden and Patti Simmer are all psuedo-successful. Ed Lewicki is still in school. Jimmy Devlin is still alive, but holds the record for the most broken bones in any living human being. Most of his cars are not alive. Billy Walsh is wealthy, with a clear conscience. Jim LaRochelle, Matt Robbins, Lisa Hanrahan and Bob Shanks are all enjoying their lives in a commune in Vermont.

Some of us went on to become great hair stylists. Betty DelSignore is in Paris creating "new-waves" and Julie Greer is in New York trying to bleach them out. Purple is the most difficult she says.

A few masochists even became teachers. Dawn Davis teaches 15 year-old hoods in an inner city elementary school. Pamela Aube teaches "preppie etiquette" at Andover Academy. Janet Fuller, who always said she wanted to spend her life working with "little animals", is teaching science at K.P. Karen Truitt is teaching Christianity to the infidels of Hollywood.

Daycare centers are appearing everywhere as more mothers are forced to support their husbands. Holly Cochran, Karen Carchio and Ann LaFerriere all own day care centers.

Chris Dufresne and Mike Wentworth are two psychologists who've spent the last two decades trying to clean up the mess I've been describing. Good Luck!!!

There are many artists amongst us. Mostly they have been locked up out in the deserts of Arizona, but a few are still functioning in society. Chip Plante is a world reknowned artist. Wendy Ballard is a great painter, and she writes poetry too. Chris Spinney is a very wealthy commercial artist.

Some of us went off insearch of fame; still others searched for something to search for! Cathy-Jane Koch is a singer. Susan Johnston is an actress. Mike Walker perished on the Amazonian wilderness while bravely attempting to explore the virgin jungle. Mark Stockwell is a marcher with the North Star Drum Corps. Melissa Dion set out 20 years ago on a mission and hasn't returned yet. She was determined to find the perfect mate, and "unearth" total bliss. Dave Thompson is using his trig functions to unconfuse the world. Jackie Poirier is a Broadway star.

There is a group of us that is in complete control of the Fortune 500. Chris Flannery, Dianne Buckley and Jean Shruhan control the fashion industry. We have given Michelle Drolette and John Guenthner charge of the banking industry.

Doug Yatsuhashi is president of a multi-million dollar computer company. Dean Thibeault is president of General Motors. Jennifer Sinjem, Lynne Pfeiffer, Theresa Jefferson, Henry Bouffard, Stacy Begin all own their own businesses and owe the IRS, of course.

Michael Vounatsos and Leif Arvidson are both owners of landscaping businesses. Shawn Stacy and Phil Craig are busy building mansions in Texas for illegal aliens.

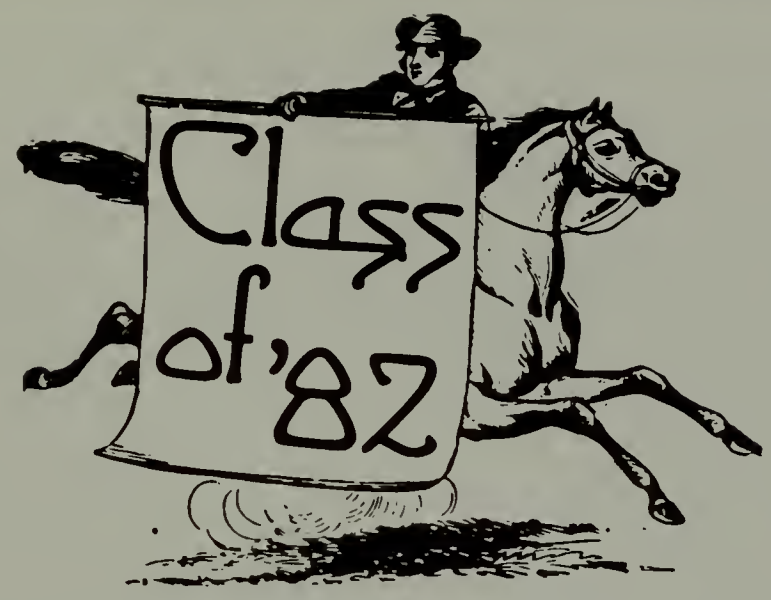
Bonnie Pass is designing solar heated homes in Alaska. Bill Fortier is an engineer at the New Wrentham Nuclear Energy Plant. Robin Betts is an Air Force Pilot. Bill Dervan is a machinist.

Chuch Ganimian is still riding his bike across the U.S. Paul Carlson is his man-servant.

Nora Strang is the Ambassador to Costa Rica, where she is doing her best to get Richard Nixon elected dictator. Patty MacKinnon is the new U.S. Ambassador to England. She says that the post is interesting now that Queen Diana is in firm control of the country.

K.P. has contributed many great minds and dedicated souls to the medical profession. Sandy Harrington is a hopsital nurse. Vampire, Linda Pearson, drains blood and examines it in a biology lab. Charlotte Mullaney, and Jill Guisti are both nurses, as is Carol Macaione. Linda Skinner is an unreal physical therapist. Linda Finnegan and Peter Eden are both superb doctors. Ed Enos is a doctor on animal medicine and a genetic farmer in Vermont. Traci Hollenbeck is a farmer and gunfighter in Oklahoma. Debbie Samsel owns a house farm. Valerie Amoling is the head chef at the White House. (Karen requested it personally!) Paul Rogers became a mountain man after graduation. He comes down occasionally to get the calculus homework. He is a U.S. Forest Ranger.

Kim Hardy is living in the mountains and computer fields.



Many students went there. Electronics is flooded. Most of the "K.P.-ers" made it big. Roy Kuphal is the head computer-scientist for the medical-research labs of IBM. Donna Axberg, Bob MacDonald, Cliff Rose and Jeff Theriault are all computer scientists.

Jeff Osiensky is doing fiendish things with the weather. Carole Conaty is the manager for the Nation's #1 Sensory Rock Band. John Rausch and Lisa Hope are in charge of Moon Security. Woody is doing pretty well with a decent job and a great family. His kids are terrific. Ann Pearson is doing fine, working steady, and engaged to a doctor. Jill Podell is busy inventing a new language she calls SPENGLISH. She hopes it will ease the culture gap between the U.S. and Spanish-speaking Americas. Oh, I just got a letter from Vicky in Columbia. She became very wealthy and is leading a revolution down there. Lorraine Lewis has a beautiful family and a great career as a computer scientist.

Scott Cronin is a billionaire who owns half of Cape Cod. Randy Miller is the new Howard Cossel, and announces all Celtics' Home Games.

Well, I'm just sort of hangin' in there. At this point, I don't know if I'll even make it to my graduation, so it my be impossible for me to write this letter to you at all.

Take it easy on those rubber walls, and don't rip that nice white jacket, I may need to borrow it soon. Mrs. Fagan is praying for you.

Love,
The Class of '82
Scott Lefoll

OUR HISTORY

In September of 1978, the Class of 1982 became the twenty-fifth graduating class to enter the halls of King Philip. Most of us were slightly nervous or rather scared to death at this prospect of high school.

Our freshman year began under the leadership of Jill Guisti, President; Jacki Park, Vice President; Sue Kenney, Secretary; and Debbie Staniscia, Treasurer. Mr. Keleher, who stayed with us as a class advisor assisted by Mrs. Tower for four years, guided us in the construction of our first homecoming float. We were extremely proud of this float which sported the slogan "Warriors don't mess around, Take those Bulldogs to the pound!" Unfortunately we didn't win the float competition.

The Freshmen-Sophomore Semi-Formal held at the King Philip Ballroom in Wrentham was a success. We were very proud to be represented in the court by Princesses Paula Walsh and Christine Spinney. We sold our fabulous class t-shirts which not only served to raise our class treasury, but also brought a feeling of unity to the class.

When our sophomore year began, not only were we year older, but we were ready to take on any challenge that had to be met. Our class officers were Paula Walsh, President; Jacki Park, Vice President; Sue Kenney, Secretary; and Debbie Staniscia, Treasurer. Miss Sandock joined ranks with Mr. Keleher and Mrs. Tower as one of our class advisors. All three assisted us in building our super sophomore float with the awesome slogan of "Raid the Hornets!" Again victory did not come our way in the float competition. The Semi-Formal was once again held at the King Philip Ballroom. Our class was beautifully represented by Queen Linda Finnegan and Princesses Paula Walsh and Carol Macaione. The Junior-Senior Powder Puff team soundly defeated the Freshmen-Sophomore team during the Powder Puff game. It was a defeat we soon forgot.

Our junior year began with a bang. Our float, again built under the guidance of our advisors projected the slogan "North Rocketeers will see stars, when K.P. shoots them straight to Mars!" Again no victory for the class of '82. We were represented by class officers Paula Walsh, President; Jacki Park, Vice President; Sue Kenney, Secretary; and Kim Hardy, Treasurer. Our major fund raisers for this year were candy sales and a Christmas Candle Sale. Renate Thumb, an exchange student from Austria joined our class for a year and lived with Jeanne Waters and her family. At our memorable Junior-Senior Prom held at the Sheraton Mansfield we were represented by Princesses Leslie Vickory and Laura Littlefield. Finally we entered the doors as SENIORS! Graduation seemed so far away when we were freshmen, and now it's just around the corner. We began with a brand new slate of officers. Leif Arvidson led our class as President, assisted by Jennifer Sinjem, Vice President; Mike Walker, Secretary; and Tony DiRe, Treasurer. Mr. Sumner also became one of our class advisors. Our class had more unity and was stronger than ever before. We won the spirit week trophy, showing our class truly had the most spirit. All our hard work that went into building our super senior float with the slogan "O .A . Tigers will be hell bound as K.P. Warriors plow 'em in the ground!" finally paid off as we captured first prize in the float competition. Our class donated the Sharon Glynn trophy in memory of her. This trophy will be awarded to each class winning the float competition. It truly honored us to become the first recipients of this trophy. We sold soap as our major fund raiser this year. Our rowdy but successful senior supper was held and enjoyed by everyone. The Prom at the Chateau de Ville in Randolph left us with fond memories. Graduation day was truly special. It was a milestone in our lives, but also in the history of the school as we became the twenty-fifth graduating class to receive our diplomas.

And now we start again in much the same way we did as freshmen.

We are young again and ready to take on new experiences and challenges. We are special! We are King Philip's twenty-fifth class, but more importantly, we are the CLASS OF 1982!

Lyndon Johnson was elected to the Senate and rose quickly to the top as he became the Senate Majority Leader. In 1960 he decided to run for the Presidency, and at the convention in Los Angeles, he was chosen by John F. Kennedy to be the Vice Presidential running mate. In 1963 he became President after Kennedy's tragic assassination.

In 1964, Johnson ran for his own term of office, and defeated Barry Goldwater. He campaigned with the promise that we would not enter Vietnam and that he would pass civil rights legislation started by his predecessors. Within a few months we were sending men into Vietnam, but the civil rights legislations did pass which was known later to be one of Johnson's greatest accomplishments.

Everyone remembers all those TV shows made in the fifties and sixties, and now shown only late nights or as UHF rerun fare. Some shows like 'Star Trek' have become more popular now in syndication than they were on prime-time network TV.

The style of material used in programs has changed over the years since people watched 'Ozzie and Harriet' and 'Leave It To Beaver' with pleasure. Censoring has been greatly reduced, and entirely new subjects are appearing. There is a good deal more realism on TV in the past ten years, but also a good deal of questionable material. What the eventual outcome of this trend will be only time will tell.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy was the youngest man and the first Roman Catholic to be elected to the Presidency. He was a vigorous young president and a new hope for the American people.

With his trimuphs in the Cuban Missile crisis, the establishment of the Peace Corps, and the landing of American men on the moon, his fame spread throughout the world. Part of JFK's greatness can be attributed to his wife, Jacqueline, who charmed millions of people worldwide. She was also responsible for having the White House turned into a cultural centerpiece with the appearances of some of the world's greatest performing artists and the presence of famous works of art.

And then, one day in Dallas after 1000 days of triumph and success, one bullet shattered the hopes and dreams of millions worldwide.

Late Wednesday May 13, 1981, the world heard the shocking news. A man had tried to kill one of the world's most beloved leaders, Pope John Paul II. The assailant, later identified by Italian police as Turkish terrorist Mehemet Ali Agca, appeared out of the crowds in St. Peter's Square, where the Pontiff was holding his regular Wednesday General Audience.

Agca shot the Pope three times, once in the abdomen, once in the right arm, and once in the left hand, with a 9mm Browning. He also wounded two American tourists in the crowd.

The Pope was taken to Policlintco Cemelli Hospital in northern Rome, where he underwent surgery to remove the bullets still lodged in his body. To the relief of people the world over, the surgery went well, and after several weeks of convalesence, the Pope was able to return to his duties at the Vatican.

The Bicentennial, our country's 200th birthday, and the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, signified a year of learning, a year of hope, and a year of celebration for all Americans world wide.

It all started when the old year went into the new, and 1976 went into progress. Throughout the year parades were given, battles were re-enacted, fireworks were shot and a sense of pride pervaded in every American.

Events such as the Tall Ships sailing up the East Coast and a huge birthday cake being floated down the Potomac River will always be great memories to those who were able to see them.

The Bicentennial was a year for all Americans to be a family, a year for everyone to be proud of their nation and their heritage.

For years, Communists had tried to take control of the entire country of Vietnam. In 1960, President Eisenhower sent American troops to train and help the Southern Vietnamese military forces with American supplied weapons. President Kennedy increased these troops in 1961, and in 1964 President Johnson sent American Forces into actual combat against Viet Cong.

The war in Vietnam became a political issue in the United States because the country was split between those who wanted out of the war and those who wanted to fight until Vietnamese freedom was restored.

After several years and much controversy, American involvement was ended thanks to the efforts of President Richard Nixon.

Roots

"Roots" was a popular mini-T.V. series which captured the hearts and minds of millions of Americans across the nation. Portraying a typical family of slaves and their day to day crises, it traces the family, or roots (hence the name), of the author Alex Haley all the way back to Africa. The movie, starring Ben Vereen as Chicken George, was very dramatic and received many awards. The best seller book was equally as good. Although it was not entirely realistic, it gave very many an idea of what it was like to be a slave.

Egypt After Sadat
Who Assassinated President Sadat?

On October 6, 1981, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was slain by Egyptian soldiers on the eighth anniversary of the October War.

Anwar Sadat, who was dubbed "The Hero of the Crossing" by admirers (referring to the crossing of the Suez Canal on October 6, 1973 into Isreal), became President of Egypt in 1970 after the death of President Gamal Abdel Nasser. Sadat was 63 on the day of his death.

Known for his measures to assure peace for his country, Sadat was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize, which he shared with Isreal's Menachem Begin, in 1978 as a result of the Camp David Accords.

Sadat has said "For great aims, we must dare great things." His successor, Hosni Mubarak, has said that he will strive to fulfill Sadat's dream of Middle East peace.

The biggest box-office attraction in Hollywood history, John Wayne, strode across the screen pursuing villains in more than 200 films. Among these were "The Big Trails" (1930), "Stagecoach" (1940), "Rooster Cogburn" (1975), and his last film, "The Shootist". In 1970, the Duke (as he was known) won an Oscar for his role in "True Grit", in which he portrayed the bounty hunter Rooster Cogburn. John Wayne symbolized rugged, simple strength and straightforwardness in a frighteningly complicated world.

A victim of cancer himself, John Wayne encouraged millions of cancer patients with his support and endorsement of the American Lung Association. But all the work of cancer researchers nationwide was not enough to save John Wayne; he died on June 11, 1979, after a lengthy series of treatments. Fans the world over mourned the loss of one of the few true heroes left in Hollywood.

In 1968, the Republican Party took over the presidency under the leadership of Richard M. Nixon.

In the beginning, Nixon was a strong leader, having helped relations between the United States and Mainland China. He was also responsible for strengthening relations between our country and the Soviet Union.

In 1972, however, Richard Milhous Nixon became the first American President to ever resign following his involvements in the infamous Watergate Scandal.

Martin Luther King Jr. was the American civil rights leader who worked to bring about social, political, and economic equality for blacks by peaceful means. During the 1950's and 1960's, King's eloquent pleas for racial justice won the support of millions of persons, both black and white. In spite of King's great emphasis on non-violence, he often became the target of violence. He was stabbed in New York City and stoned in Chicago. His home in Montgomery, Alabama, was bombed also. Finally, violence cut short his life at the age of 39. James Earl Ray shot and killed him on April 4, 1968, in Memphis, Tennessee.

A native of Plains, Georgia, James Earl Carter became the first president to be elected from the Deep South since the Civil War. He was graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy and pursued a career with the Navy until the death of his father when he left the Navy to take over the family peanut business.

Jimmy Carter's political career began when he was elected to the Georgia State Senate. Later in 1970, he was elected governor of Georgia and in 1976, he defeated President Gerald Ford to become the 39th President of the United States.

As President, Carter is best known for his support of world wide human rights and his involvement in the peace negotiations between Israel and Egypt.

Twenty-Graduating Class 1985 - TL

In April of 1979, an accident happened at the Three Mile Island Nuclear Power Plant in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. Panicked residents, unsure of the danger, fled the immediate area into the surrounding countryside.

This incident brought to the surface, all the formerly unexpressed fears and warnings about nuclear power. Environmentalists seized this example to show the dangers of radiation and fallout to the general public—a public which had dismissed the risks until this time, having been willing to trade potential problems for lower electric bills.

Harrisburg has since become a rallying point for the nation's anti-nuclear adtivists. Protests at Seabrook in New Hampshire and Devil's Canyon in California have awakened the public to a realization of the incompatability of nuclear power and ecological safety. Let us hope that is not too late.

The J. Geils Band is a hard-rocking, show stopping, energetic band right out of Boston, where they have recorded a live album. The group's leader, J. Geils, organized the band in the early seventies with Peter Wolf as lead singer. The group made their second annual Christmas appearance to promote their 1981 album "Freeze Frame", which includes the title song, and "Angel Is a Centerfold". Other J. Geils songs are "Sanctuary", "Come Back", "No Anchovies Please" and "Love Stinks". The group is highly explosive, Peter Wolf's singing is dynamic and their 1981 tour was a great success.

One of many British Rock groups, the Who is acclaimed as one of the best. The band members are Roger Daltry, Peter Townshend, John Entwistle and Kenny Jones, who replaced Keith Moon after his death.

The Who has the reputation of giving top-notch performances and always draws huge crowds. After a serious accident at a Cinncinnati concert, which resulted in the death of eleven people, the group was denied permission to play in Providence.

The style of their music reflects that of their listeners and they have numerous accomplishments behind them. Such are movies like "Who's Next', albums like "Quadraphonia", "The Kids Are Alright" and the rock opera "Tommy". The Who should be around for many years to come.

"She loves you! Ya, Ya, Ya!" These words sent the hearts of young girls throbbing as the Beatles rose to stardom. Originally billed as "The Quarrymen", the Beatles have become a legend in their own time. Their first single "Love Me Do" was recorded on the RCA label, and not until "Hey, Jude" was produced did the group sign on with the Apple Label.

There was great sadness when the Beatles broke up, but the memories of their movies and music will live on as long as there are eyes to watch and ears to hear.

The Doors, founded by the late Jim Morrison, seem to be even more popular now than when the group broke up in 1971. Jim Morrison, nicknamed "The Lizard King", wrote the band's music. As in his poetry, the lyrics are haunting and symbolic of his inner feelings and thoughts. The group's name was derived from the words of William Blake, "There are things that are known and things that are unknown; in between the doors!"

Recognizable songs are "Hello, I Love You", "Light My Fire", "Celebration of the Lizard" and "Love Me Two Times". The Doors albums are "The American Prayer", "The Doors", "Waiting For the Sun", and "Greatest Hits". The Doors have left a legacy of intense music behind them.

Bruce Springsteen, "The Boss" to a true believer, first burst onto the 70's music scene with the release in 1975 of "Born to Run". The critical success of the album was accompanied by the simultaneous cover stories on Springsteen in both Time and Newsweek. More excitement was generated by Jon Landau's statement after seeing a Springsteen concert in Boston: "I have seen the future of rock 'n' roll, and its name is Bruce Springsteen."

His five albums, including the now-classic "Born to Run" and the 1980 album "The River", contain some of the most vivid and haunting lyrics in contemporary music.

The Boss is so popular in his home state (New Jersey) that the governor once declared a "Bruce Springsteen Day".

The Bristish rock group the Rolling Stones, is one of the greatest bands to hit the United States. The band consists of five members. Ron Wood and Keith Richard (guitars), Bill Wyman (bass), Charlie Watts (drums), and "The Man", Mick Jagger (vocals). They have produced more albums than any other group except The Grateful Dead and the Beatles, who have produced as many. They were recently on tour promoting their newest album "Tattoo You". The Stones' albums include "Hot Rocks", "Sticky Fingers", "Some Girls", and "Emotional Rescue".

The career of Simon and Garfunkel started when they were still in high school. Paul Simon and Art Garfunkel collaborated on a song called "Hey, Schoolgirl". The song became a top-forty hit, and the pair were off. Their name then wasn't Simon and Garfunkel, though. They called themselves "Tom and Jerry".

As Simon and Garfunkel, their first hit song was "The Sounds of Silence". Since then, their popularity has never died. The pair recorded the soundtrack for "The Graduate" and their album "Bridge Over Troubled Water" still ranks as one of the ten best selling albums in the world, with over ten million copies sold.

Millions were disappointed when the pair broke up and each went his own way in the music world.

Archie

All In The Family, was one of the longest running TV comedy series, created by Norman Lear and owned by CBS. It starred Carroll O'Connor, as the bigoted but always hilarious Archie Bunker, Jean Stapleton as the easily intimidated, ever compassionate wife Edith, Sally Struthers, their very modern and spoiled daughter Gloria, and Rob Reiner as her "meat-head", liberal husband. The episodes of All In The Family always brought out serious and controversial points. The topics of religion, rape, war, pregnancy, and death, earlier taboo to television, have been concentrated upon for all to examine and form their own opinion. Norman Lear has always said his main point was to provide entertainment for the people.

A moment of terror

Monday, March 30, 1981; 3:00 p.m.: the world is shocked by the news that Ronald Reagan has been shot. Leaving a Washington hotel where he had been at a meeting with labor leaders, he had stepped toward his car, surrounded by Secret Service agents. At that moment, a man in the small crowd which had gathered on the sidewalk raised a gun and fired several times. As the secret service jumped to subdue the would-be assassin, the President was hustled into his car and taken to a hospital.

The assailant was later identified as John Hinkley, Jr., a young man from the Midwest who was obsessed with Tatum O'Neal. He wrote a letter to her the morning of the shooting, explaining what he was going to do; it was found later in his motel by the police.

Hinkley was brought to the trial several months later, and was sentenced to 20 years in Attica Federal Penetentiary. Fortunately, the President recovered quickly from his wounds and was soon able to resume his duties.

The 1960's brought with them hippies, Vietnam, and a new kind of music. The Beach Boys, with their surfing summer sound, were the forerunners of the beach blanket culture. "Surfing Safari" and "Surfing USA", songs typifying this new beachward movement, shot to the top of the charts all over the country, and the Beach Boys became superstars. Most of the Beach Boys' music during the 60's and early 70's was beach music. As time went on, however, music styles changed, and the Beach Boys changed with them. The core of their music was still the beach and surfing songs, but they also wrote songs such as "Good Vibrations" and "Heroes and Villains". In 1975, the Beach Boys went on tour with Chicago, and soon after, recorded their Endless Summer album, which contained many of their best beach songs, including "California Girls" and "All Summer Long". By 1982, the Beach Boys' popularity had begun to fade, but the timeless messages contained in their music will remain a part of our culture.

Boston first hit the charts in 1977 with their debut called Boston, featuring the popular songs, "More Than A Feeling", "Rock-N-Roll Band" and "Longtime".

Although, by definition, their music is hard rock-n-roll, Boston successfully introduced a unique harmonic flow to their sound thus making them different fron the typical rock bands. This difference enabled them to rise from nearly complete anonymity to national stardom in a very short time.

Boston's second album, "Don't Look Back", featuring the song by the same name, was released in 1979. This album brought out the same type of unusual rock as the debut album reinforcing their position as one of the premier rock bands in the country.

The Chieftain is what you are holding in your hands, of course—the school yearbook. The staff and their trusty editors (Karen Schwalbe and Laura Lindsay), with the help of their harried advisors (Mrs. Fagan and Mr. Sumner), toil all year long to turn out the familiar green volume before graduation. Sometimes they succeed and . . .

Yearbooking can be back-breaking work. It takes a lot of time and imagination to plan layouts, crop pictures and write copy, all in time to meet the next deadline. It can also be lots of fun. Consider the Josten's Workshop held every summer at Bryant College. There, editors and section editors hold brain-storming sessions, and collect ideas for the coming year's book. A theme must be determined and carries through the entire book. Every name must fit a face. Fads, movies, and music must be included. And somebody has to take all those pictures.

The Drama Club is an organization dedicated to the performance and interpretation of theatrical productions. Every fall and spring, the club meets with advisors Mr. and Mrs. Huckle, to plan the next play. First, a play must be picked and agreed upon by the entire group. Then it is read through for content and popular value. Next comes the important part: casting. Auditions are held, and every member is allowed to read for any part they may wish. Director Mrs. Huckle makes the decisions for the cast, stage crew are selected and the work begins.

Rehearsals can start more than two months before the performance, and be held twice a week for two hours a night. Each scene is rehearsed over and over, to make sure that everyone knows their lines. The stage crew keeps busy acquiring props, designing and painting the set, and arranging costumes. The Spotlighters prepare the lighting arrangements, and everyone sells tickets.

The final kinks are worked out during dress rehearsal, and the doors are swung wide on opening night to welcome a full house. Only two or three performances are usually given, for royalty fees are quite high.

The National Honor Society is composed of students who have met high standards in qualifying for Honor Society membership. The requirements are tough; one must fulfill each of the four goals set by the Society: Scholarship, Leadership, Character, and Service. To qualify for candidacy, one must hold a consistent A-B average for two years. One must write several essays, fill out forms and be given an interview by the Honor Society advisors. After all the candidates have been interviewed, the advisors decide who will be initiates. The initiates and their families are invited to a banquet where they are welcomed into the King Philip Chapter of the National Honor Society. Juniors and Seniors only are admitted to the Society, and all officers are Seniors.

Key Club

The Key Club, advised by Mr. Cormier, is an honorary group, membership of which is awarded, like the National Honor Society, to outstanding students. All one must do to qualify for membership is to receive six terms of straight A's on the report card. Perhaps that is why there are so few members.

Girls and Boys State members are students whose academic achievements and leadership potential have come to the attention of the local American Legion. Each year, the Legion sponsors a week of activities for exceptional students.

There the students live in dormitories and attend lectures and meetings concerned with local and state government. They elect mayors, selectmen, senators and a governor. Two students from each state are also elected to be sent as Senators to Girls or Boys Nation in Washington, D.C.

Student Council

The Student Council is a group of elected representatives, five from each class and three vocational representatives. They work with the Student Activities Coordinator, Mr. Lepere, in fund raising and social events at the school. Spirit Week, assemblies and class elections are coordinated by the Student Council. All activities planned by groups in the school, including fund-raising and field trips, must be approved by the Student Council before they are allowed to take place.

The Student Advisory Council consists of one member from each class and one vocational representative. They have the power to speak directly to the School Committee on matters concerning the student body. However, they can only advise; they cannot vote or introduce motions into the committee. The Student Advisory Council attends at least five School Committee meetings each year.

OEA

OEA is a non-profit organization which is designed to help students who are in a business program. The group has four primary objectices.

These are:

1) to develop professional competency
2) to develop leadership traits
3) to develop social and professional awareness
4) to create a better understanding of career opportunities.

Members of this organization work at development of office skills and business projects, and the group goes to many state and national competitions. King Philip OEA has done well consistently in these competitions; 1981's team won many awards at the state level and then went on to place again at Nationals in Texas.

DECA: Distributive Education Clubs of America. DECA's key is the planning of and preparation for future careers. These careers include advertising, merchandising, economics, and many more. Students actually work with business leaders in the field and with the equipment and materials used in industry. Their purpose is to develop a respect for education in marketing which will contribute to the competitive enterprise system. Members compete and meet with students having similar career goals in different areas of marketing. King Philip DECA is one of the best in its field, having won many awards, both at state and national competitions.

The Math League is a group of students who compete on a regular basis with other schools in the area. The competitions are based, of course, on skill in mathematical fields. There are five areas in which the students are tested: Arithmetic, Algebra I, Geometry, Algebra II, and Trigonometry.

Each school in a competition fields two teams of five students. Each student must compete in three out of the five areas.

The Band Council is a group of band members, including at least one person from each class, who organize activities and fund-raising for the band. They are elected by the band in general, although only students who have been band members for at least one year can vote. The council also serves as a go-between for the band members and Steve Elman, the band leader.

"Good Morning K.P." Each day, during homeroom, the members of the WKPH Radio Club deliver the morning announcements. The club consists of only eight members, four juniors and four seniors. Auditions are held around December for juniors who wish to join WKPH. Students remain in the club until they graduate. The announcers alternate days, two students at a time doing the announcements each morning. In the past the principal has been the advisor, but this year Mr. Hart gave the group support.

'We've kept the faith with our principles and our people, . . . we have reached this day of joy and thanksgiving.'

A flight to freedom for the 52 hostages

In early November, 1979 52 Americans were taken hostage by Iranian militants in Tehran.

After an aborted rescue attempt in early Spring 1980, which cost the lives of several marines, the 52 hostages were separated and scattered throughout Tehran, which made it impossible to attempt another rescue.

It was not until January 20, 1981, 444 days after their capture and just hours into Ronald Reagan's term as president, that the hostages were released.

The effect of this crisis on the entire country was overwhelming. Yellow ribbons, as a symbol for their release, were worn by millions to show our support of these 52 Americans whose loyalty and courage as Americans lead them through those difficult months. Their ordeal will not be forgotten.

At a time when the United States was at an extreme emotional low because of the Hostage Crisis in Iran, the U.S. Olympic Hockey Team managed to give America some pride! The first big victory for the U.S. was a 7-3 win over Czechoslovakia which started the wheels rolling. People began to follow these young players in anticipation of playing the Russians. The game against the Soviet Union was unbelievable! The crowd was chanting, "USA! USA!" as "America's Team" tried for the supposedly impossible victory over the Russians. But it happened. In the third period with the score tied 3-3, Mike Eruzione fired a shot passed the Soviet goaltender for the winning goal! The United States as a whole went crazy with excitement! America's Team still had to win one more game to clinch the gold metal. The team they had to face was Finland and they were far from shabby. The U.S. after falling behind, came back to win 4-2, climaxing a super effort by everyone.

When the United States announced its decision to enter the war in Vietnam, there were very strong reactions from parties both in favor and opposed. One of the most vocal and visible groups that formed in protest of the intervention overseas were the Flower Children. They congregated everywhere, wearing embroidered jeans and sporting shoulder length hair for both men and women. The basic principle of the Flower Children's philosophy was one of peace. They would arrange 'love-ins' and 'sit-ins' and sing for hours. One of the most popular chants was John Lennon's mantra "All we are saying is give peace a chance."

But after the war, the movement died out and most of the activists (with a few notable exceptions) returned to what they had been before they were struck by social and political awareness.

Elvis Presley, dubbed the "King of Rock-n-Roll" was a popular singer and actor of the late 1950's and early 1960's. He was known for such songs as "Hound Dog Man" and "Love Me Tender".

He also starred in major motion pictures such as "King Creole" and "Girls, Girls, Girls." He drove his fans into a frenzy at his concerts, and souvenir pieces of his clothing are invaluable today. On August 16, 1977 Elvis died of a drug overdose, but his memory will live on forever.

In the early nineteen hundreds, many authors wrote stories about space travel, stories that were despised by the common man as "ridiculous" or "absurd". Everyone knew you couldn't go to the moon.

And yet within ten years of the first manned orbit of the earth America had placed a man on the moon. On July 19, 1969, Neil Armstrong set his foot on the surface of the moon. This event, and the words he spoke ("one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind,") marked the birth of a whole new era of technology and space travel. Now people no longer laugh at those "absurd" stories.

John Lennon died on December 8, 1980. He was murdered by Mark D. Chapman outside the door of his apartment building, the Dakota, in New York City. The loss of this one man was mourned by millions all over the world. The former Beatle had been an international music star for close to twenty years, his songs being both meaningful and beautiful. After the breakup of the Beatles, which, some claimed, was caused by Lennon's marriage to Yoko Ono, Lennon went into music on his own and remained a star in his own right. Many of his songs are protests against war, and were sung for him immediately following his death. It is ironic that one of the most peace-loving men in his time was killed by a man who was a fan of his reflective music.

Ronald Reagan, a former actor and governor of California, was elected President in 1980. He was responsible as governor, for taking California from near bankruptcy to a position of financial prosperity.

In the first 11 months of his administration, Reagan has met great controversy over his positions on economics, budget cuts, and AWACS sale to Saudi Arabia and increased defense spending.

On March 30, 1981, a hammer clicked and a small revolver sprayed chaos. A press secretary lay face down on a side walk, blood trickling down from his head. Policeman Delahanty collasped with a bullet in his neck. Another bullet caught Secret Service Agent Timothy McCarthy and yet another bullet entered the left side of President Reagan causing a puncture wound in his chest. After a brief convalescence at a Washington Hospital, the President returned to his duties in the White House and all injured in that tragedy have returned to near normal lives.

BAND

"I Dream of Jeannie", the long running hit television series of the 60's starred Barbara Eden, of "Harper Valley PTA," as a magical genie from Bagdad who was found and debottled by Major Tony Nelson of NASA, played by Larry Hagman of T.V.'s "Dallas".

The stories centered around Jeannie's various escapades, and Major Nelson's attempts to keep her out of the way of his superiors. Jeannie's eagerness to be of use to her master, however, often resulted in fiascos from which only her magical powers would save her.

Foreigner

In less time than it takes most groups to obtain a recording contract, Foreigner released two multi-million selling albums, from which have emerged such hits as "Feels Like The First Time", "Cold As Ice", and "Hot Blooded". This popular group is on a journey to success with no detours and no stops.

As of November 1976, the group had taken the name Foreigner and signed with Atlantic Records. By February 1977, Foreigner had been released and had become number one across the country. Their second album Double Vision followed suit and was later joined by Head Games. Foreigner's latest album Foreigner-4 promises to join the others at the top of the charts.

Unlike most actors, John Belushi and Dan Aykroyd seem to have grown in popularity since they left T.V. They've gained success individually and as a favorite duo. They are best known for their portrayal of the Blues Brothers, a brilliant idea introduced on the "The Saturday Night Live" stage. Belushi and Aykroyd met long before they joined the "Saturday Night" cast. Their long friendship might be the reason for their remarkable success. They paired up in the wartime comedy 1941 and continued as Jake and Elwood with The Blues Brothers film.

The Blues Brothers began as a satirical routine but emerged as a highly profitable business. They were offered a small fortune to go out on a concert tour but this will no longer be possible. John Belushi died in California on March 6, 1982. No longer will we laugh at the funny antics of the Blues Brothers.

Even as a high school student, Jackson Browne was gaining a reputation as a musical force. While other students were writing term papers Jackson was composing songs displaying emotion with poetic imagery. By the time he was eighteen, established L.A. artists were buying his songs.

Jackson Browne's earliest success began with the co-writing of "Take It Easy" with the Eagles. He put that famous song on his second album, but it was a tune called "Doctor My Eyes" that captured the attention of the public and made Jackson Browne a nationally recognized performer.

Jackson Browne's works include Everyman, his second album, the almost classic hit "Running on Empty", and his most recent album, Hold Out.

NISSEN

Inspired towards a music career at age 11, when he watched Elvis making a film near his home in Florida, Tom Petty has been making money as a musician since he was 14. In his early 20's he signed a record contract with ABC Records. Tom migrated to L.A., where he met up with some friends who were also musicians, and the group thus formed dubbed "Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers". Despite poor promotion, their first album "Breakdown" was an instant hit.

When ABC Records went out of business, MCA Records claimed rights to Tom's contract. After nine months of court battles, Tom Petty signed his new record contract.

Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers' newest release, "Hard Promises", is a great success. After setting a new standard price of $8.98 per album, Tom Petty adorned his new album with a picture of himself shopping in a record store.

1982 Chieftain

Graduation is approaching quickly and as we hurry with the finishing touches, I would like to thank all the people who helped put this yearbook together. A warm note of appreciation to my staff, who stayed for late nights, skipped classes and put up with my raving, while doing an excellent job. Thanks go to Reverend Anderson and The Original Congreational Church in Wrentham for allowing us to use the library as a background for the endsheets. I would also like to thank Dan Smith, our company representative, and Mike Marston, our photographer, for all their help. Most of all, I would like to thank Mrs. Fagan and Mr. Sumner. Without their endless supply of patience and dedication, we would still be stuck on page one. My staff and I have spent a great deal of time and effort putting this yearbook together and we think that it is the best Chieftain produced in the last 25 years. We hope that you will be as proud of it as we are.

With Best Wishes,
Laura Jean Lindsay
Co-Editor
1982 Chieftain

I would like to thank everyone for their cooperation to make this book possible. I want to give special thanks to Mrs. Fagan and Mr. Sumner who put up with missed deadlines, late copy, and messy layout sheets, among other things. I would like to thank the yearbook staff who put valuable time and effort into preparing this book. Special thanks go to Scott LeFoll, for the prophecy; Michele Drolette, Jami Ransom, Connie Callahan, Beverly Loew, and Lori Samuto for their work on the history; and Chuck Taber, Kevin Moore, Greg Cook, and Mike Marston for all the photographs they took. Last, but most certainly not least, I would like to thank Dan Smith, our Josten Representative, for all the time he put in to help make this book one of the best Chieftains ever to come out of King Philip High School. This book is important to the school because it is the twenty-fifth anniversary book, and to our class, the class of 1982, because we are the twenty-fifth graduating class. They are the ones who truly made this book possible.

With thanks and love,
Karen Schwalbe
